Risk Information

Investment in the Fund involves significant risks. The value of investments and income may fluctuate, and investors may not achieve the expected return on their investment. Past performance is not indicative of future results, and there is no guarantee that the Fund will achieve its objectives or preserve capital.

The Fund invests primarily in Emerging Markets and High Yield fixed income securities, which carry higher credit, liquidity, and market risks compared to Investment Grade instruments. Issuers may have weaker credit profiles and greater default risk, and liquidity in these markets can deteriorate sharply in periods of stress, making it harder to sell assets at fair prices. Debt securities are exposed to interest rate risk, as rising rates typically reduce bond prices, particularly for longer maturities. The Fund may also invest in lower-rated or asset-backed securities, which are more volatile and can lose value if the underlying assets decline or issuers fail to meet obligations. Some holdings may be less liquid, limiting trading flexibility. The Fund may use derivatives for hedging or efficient portfolio management, which can increase volatility and introduce counterparty, leverage, and operational risks. Currency forwards may be used to hedge non-USD exposures, though hedging effectiveness depends on market conditions and counterparties. Emerging Markets investments involve heightened political, regulatory, and economic risks, including capital controls and less-developed market infrastructures. Cash held in time deposits or money market funds is subject to issuer default risk. Although managed under UCITS regulations that aim to provide a high level of investor protection, these do not remove market risks. Investors should assess suitability based on their circumstances and seek independent
